Chapter One: School

Characters.

Eclipse: a strange student who never takes her hood off.

Carl: a boy who gets tripped

Characters:

Regina: a spoiled brat who has some followers who will do anything for her.

Beep! Beep! My alarm went, half asleep I hit the alarm button as I stretched my wings and got out of bed. It was the last full month of school. I hit the shower and got dressed and hid my wings in my shaggy sweatshirt because I could change them all the way. I grabbed my backpack, shoved my lunch in it and hopped on my bike and I rode through my neighborhood. as I rode to my school I saw the towering wall keeping us safe from the monsters. I looked at the swaying trees and green grass, I watched as some hatchlings took their first flight, I inhaled the sweet smell of flowers and I parked my bike. At school I was grabbing my math book out of my locker but suddenly my locker shut and there was Regina, the spoiled brat.

"Heeeyy Eclipse-"

"what do you want?" I said interrupting Regina.

"Do you still want a friend? If so I bet Carl would be yours." she said tauntingly.

I glanced over as Carl got tripped. , "Nah He's not my type" I replied confidently ignoring her insult.

"Oh but you two are meant for each other. 🎵 Two weirdos sittin' in a tree K-I-S-S-I-N-G 🎵"

Now she done it! I thought agitated and I hit back at her with,

"Where's your rich boyfriend at? Wait let me guess he dumped you cause you just wanted to steal money from him?"

Chapter One: School

Now she was enraged. She snapped her fingers and there were her followers. "Tracy, Stacy, Let teach This Brainiac a lesson." Tracy and stacy grabbed me and shoved me in my locker.

"Come on, it stinks of Weirdo here." Regina said as they walked away. I banged on my locker trying to open the door but it stayed shut. I let out a long sigh, relaxed my muscles and called out hoping someone would answer.

"Hello?" said a voice. The rush of hope rippled through me.

"In here!" I shouted, hoping the Unknown person would find me.

"What locker?" they asked. I said the number then heard a crash. It was silent. My heart plummeted

"H-hello?" I Quietly asked No reply. I peeked through the narrow slots in my locker and I saw this hideous creature holding the student who I was talking, to with its large tentacles. I felt like cowering, hoping to not get found. But, then I saw the fear in the student's eyes and I realized, that I was probably the only one who could save that student from getting eaten so I changed.

Chapter Two: The Adventure Begins

Characters:
Eclipse: a strange student

Characters:
A random kid

I heard a muffled gasp from the student when she saw my locker burst open and saw my two glowing eyes, sharp spikes along my back, and my large wings. I leaped at the creature at full speed and Caught it by surprise as it released the student. I stopped the creature from grabbing the student as she ran away. Before the creature could grab me in its tentacles I bit it on the shoulder. Blood runs down its leg as it yelped in pain and I hid and attacked again Angered with rage the creature looked around confused trying to pinpoint me. When I bumped into the wall the creature almost saw me but got distracted by the monster alarm. It quickly went into the hole it came from and left me with monster control. They started to come from both halls I had no choice but to shoot through the roof. I probably wouldn't of made it through if it weren't for my diamond scales. After what seemed like an eternity I felt the warm air against my scales and I shot for the wall. I knew what they would do if they caught me. Creatures what have harmed a human are never heard from again and they at the moment though that I was the attacker. So I felt like over the wall, the only wall protecting us from the monsters was safer. Just a few feet away The towering wall made me feel like an insect. I jumped and Flew over the wall, into the unknown.

Chapter Three: The Beast

Characters:

Ivy: A lonely young dragon with green scales. Good at health stuff.

I scampered around the unfamiliar environment, knowing I could be easy prey I tried to climb a tree but I felt sharp pain as I kicked off the ground, My leg had a deep cut. I winced as I limped over to a small cave with moss at the entrance and long vines covering the opening. As I entered the cave I settled down to clean my wound but, I was soon disturbed by some rocks clattering. It was too dark to see but I squinted my eyes and made out a shadowed figure what looked like a dragon. I realized That I was in their territory. Frighten, I tried to back out of the cave but my leg hurt too much to move. As the shadow grew closer I started to panic, I tried to fly out but the cave was too small for my large wings. I prepared for impact but, I only got greeted,

"Hi! I haven't seen another dragon since,"she paused, "I dunno... What's your name?" Surprised by the hospitality I replied,

"Eclipse, My name is Eclipse."

"Well hello Eclipse I'm Ivy! Are you ok? that gash looks pretty bad, you should put some cobweb on it." The green dragon padded deeper into the cave and came back with some cobweb. "Here, this will help." Ivy wrapped my leg with the cobweb and it seemed to get better.

"Thank you." I said with a relieved voice.

"No problem, I seem to have an endless supply of it in my cave-" I saw her eyes shadowed with loneliness as she looked to the ground.

Chapter Three: The Beast

In an Instant I remembered a story I was told by my parents when I was eight. "Hey do you know about the Dragon village?"

"I have heard stories, of this beautiful place flowing with fruits and Other dragon" A smile grew on my face as I said,

"Let's look for it!" Ivy's eyes shined with happiness and she nodded. "Alright let's go!" I shouted and we ran out the cave(Well I sorta kinda limped.) and into the forest. After a while we came to a stop because it was late. "Lets camp here." I said and Ivy nervously nodded. I wondered why she was so nervous when we left the cave After gathering some sticks for the fire, I realized it was scary quiet "Ivy?" I said waiting for her to reply. I heard a snap and twisted around and saw a gigantic shadowed creature and in its claws was Ivy, she was unconscious but alive. I jumped at the creature but it pushed me away easily. I jumped at it again but this time I used my wings as a boost and slammed into it. The creature, surprised dropped Ivy and staggered back a little but it didn't leave instead it crashed into me at a high enough speed to knock the air out of me. then, it went black.

I let out an frustrated hiss and went out into the forest. As I padded through the forest I inhaled hoping to find the slightest sent of her. After about ten minutes of searching I came across a sent I never Smelled before and by the sent of it it was fresh it was around here about 3 minutes ago.

Now, I was on full alert turning my head towards any sound. I looked around and slowly backed into a cave. I bumped something and felt my heart drop. I slowly turned my head around to the ginormous snake like creature and realized this was the thing with the sent. I shot out the cave and tried to run for it but it was much faster than me and before I could take off to the sky it slammed me down. While hitting the ground I felt sharp pain and went limp because it hurt to much to move. The snake picked me up with its mouth full of serrated teeth and slithered away. I managed to open my eyes enough to see the environment, I saw a gigantic castle and many creatures in a line with all sorts of prey they caught. I knew if I tried to escape I would be crushed by its massive mouth so I just stayed still. Soon The snake creature entered the castle with me and dropped me on the ground to speak to this large creature on a throne.

Chapter Four: Finding Ivy

'I found this Dragon in my territory and I brought it to your highness for the safety of me not getting attacked'"

I realized this was my chance to escape so I jolted for the door and I tried to leap out but I felt a tug as I got yanked back. I hissed and arched my back when I stumbled to a stand. "You are not going to cost me my life dragon!" the snake creature hissed as it lunged towards me I dodged its deadly bite but it got me trapped as it coiled around me and did not let me move.

"Guards take this dragon to the cells." ordered the King of creatures. The guards took me from the snake and dragged me away while I hissed and bite at them.

I turned around and saw some guards taking to the wolf like monster in chef clothing saying,

"The King wants you to take the two recently caught dragons and have them in the kitchen before noon." That is when I realized that We were going to be his lunch. I turned towards Ivy and knew that she heard that too. I paced around thinking of ways we could escape then I thought of a great idea.

"Hey Ivy I got the most brilliant plan!"

"What?" Ivy asked

"What about we acted asleep so they don't expect anything when unlocking the cells and we jump at them with all we got and run and escape."

"That is risky..." Ivy whisper worried.

"Would you rather get eaten?" I said trying to urge her to agree.

"Sigh alright let's do it."

I shouted "Over there that windows open!" she nodded and we lunged towards it as we leaped out I felt a net over my wing and I tried to get it off so I could fly but it wouldn't budge scrambling around to get it off I tripped out the window and Ivy Sprang to save me but I was too heavy. "I-gasp-I can't w-gasp- walk!" I gasped trying to catch my breath after the hard hit to the ground.

"You need protection from them!" Ivy said. I looked and saw a cave with leaves drooping down over the entrance a few minutes away

"O-over there." I said while wincing. She turned towards the cave and said "Good spotting!" she started to run over But then stopped and turned around and said, "sorry! my bad." Ivy came back over and helped me up to my feet but didn't let any pressure go on my leg by letting me lean towards her. We slowly but surely walked towards the cave. The first thing I did when we got to the cave was flop to the ground and lick my leg a couple of times and put cobweb on it like Ivy did. Soon Ivy came in with berries and a stick.

"What's that for?" I questioned and Ivy replied

"It's going to be like a cast."

"Oh ok." I said embarrassed by my lack of knowledge about that stuff. We heard some rocks tumble Whoosh! I heard a yelp and Ivy was gone I looked around alert and startled, I yelped at what felt like a bee sting. Drowsiness overcame me as I fell into a deep sleep

I looked around as I saw beams of sunlight coming through the roof of the unfamiliar room the sunlight felt like I was in a dream but I was very much awake I spotted a green figure as it popped its head up and turned to face me

"Ivy Where are we?" I mumbled

"We are here!" Ivy exclaimed

"Where?" I asked confused about her excitement.

"The Dragon Village!" I soon realized that it was exactly how her parents told her. Sunlight what can go on for days, Tropical fruits and creatures, and most of all Dragons! Two dragons with armor entered one with red and black scale, the other with blue and white scales.

"Why were you in our territory, we have never seen you in our village, Explain yourself!" A guard spat. I soon realized that we are being held as intruders here. I felt a pang of fear, I stuttered,

"I-i'm Eclipse and this is Ivy, we didn't mean to go in your territory-oh, wait I mean we didn't mean to be thought as a threat we just wanted to live here. If thats ok with you I mean we aren't trying to force ourselves in here." The guards looked at each other then said. "That isn't for us to decide, follow us." I limped forward wincing at each step. We entered this large structure, lining the walls, beautiful prints and drapes. Ahead, a two huge doors, a guard at each.

Chapter Eight: The Leader

"State your business." The guard to the right said.

"Two intruders want to have a word with the queen." A guard beside us said.

"Alright" The guard to the right said as they opened the large doors. Before my eyes there was a long hall filled with dragons talking to each other. When the doors closed all eyes were on us and I felt really awkward. The guards pushed us forward as they marched behind us. Many dragons look at us with curiosity others with hostile glares. Soon we were before a dragon in a throne.

"Who are these?" She said curiously

"Some dragons we caught on our patrol." a guard snarled.

"Why are they chained up? One sustains an injury and the other one doesn't even has recently shedded her scales. They are no harm to us." Overcome with relief of her hospitality I forgot about my pain for a minute. "Now why are you here?"

I started "We came here for a better life away from the creatures and the slimy caves."

"Really?" The queen looked uncertain. "Don't you know about the rules?"

"Rules? what rules?" I questioned wondering if the stories I heard were wrong.

"Anyone who enters without letting us know has to face a trial"

"What are you saying?" I asked as my heart plummeted.

"You poor poor younglings" The queen said with a voice full of sorrow.

Chapter Eight: The leader

The guards that brought us here said, "Your majesty you know that there are no exceptions"

"Sigh, I know I just wish that I could of changed my fathers rule." She replied sadly

"Why can't you?" I asked hoping to find any way to stop the trial.

"I would if I could but my fathers dying wish was for me too keep one of his rules. I asked which one and he said, rule 29 I agreed not knowing which one. Then I found out it was that one and I couldn't do anything."

"What's the Trial?" I asked hoping that it wouldn't be as dangerous as it sounded.

"It is were Intruders would be put in a stadium with a creature and you would need to survive." She winced as she thought of us getting torn apart.

"Is it possible for me to go alone instead of Ivy?" I asked when I looked into Ivy's eyes shadowed with fear.

"You know that would mean you would have to be up against two creatures." she said with worry.

"I know. But if I survive Please let us stay but, if I don't, Let Ivy go away unharmed." I asked hoping that Ivy would be safe. The queen replied

I limped to the large door to the stadium but before I entered I heard I screech. I Turned my head around to see a Crowd of dragons scrambling away from cry. As I turned my head around the corner I saw a large winged creature attacking a dragon and another creature dragging a net of unconscious Dragons. I shouted for Ivy Worried for her safety and saw her running toward me "What's going on!" I shouted over the screams and cries.

"The creatures are invading! They Found the village and they are capturing the dragons!" Ivy Screamed over the Cries. "Let's get out of here!" Ivy continued.

But the village needs help--"

"We would be no help if we get caught!" Ivy yelled. I looked over to the captured dragons. "Every second we stay makes us at a bigger risk of getting caught!" Ivy roared to me.

I let out a long sigh. "Ok lets go." I raced unbelievably fast for my injury as we doged some nets and arrows and slid into a bush and looked for the closest exit. I signaled to Ivy with my wing to run and we jumped through the exit. We found a cave nearby and hid in it. After a hour we hear nothing we padded along the leaf covered ground to the entrance of the not so hidden anymore Village. I was clear to see that the dragons lost because it was empty and silent.

Chapter Nine Part One: The Invasion

As we walked cautiously through the empty Village There was no sign of life. They didn't leave one behind. A sudden rage filled me And I roared With anger

"What was that about" Ivy questioned

"I just feel so-so enraged!" I yelled then I realized that I had to calm down.

" why?" Ivy asked

" Uh well there is something I didn't ever tell anyone." I paused. I looked to Ivy and her curious filled eyes. "I have a power, it is uh different that other dragon." I continued. "It was gifted to me by my grandparents uh." I paused and Ivy asked

"Is it telaportaion?"

"No. Its uh its," I nervously started. Ivy would be the first one I have ever told. "I can change."

"Into what." Ivy asked excited.

"Any living thing But, I can't control it that good, if I get to mad I can change into something I can't control. The only one I almost master was human."

"Woah. this is, GREAT!" Ivy said

"What?" I exclaimed confused

"You never know until you try!" Ivy said

She's right! I never tried before, I was only told by my grandparents.

"Alright let's go!" I said with confidence. We rushed to the towering Doors of the castle what the dreaded creatures king lived. I inhaled as I prepared to change. Ivy looked at me, nodded and hid in a bush in case anything went wrong. I thought of a phoenix, the shades of red orange and yellow feathers. I thought of It's huge wingspan, and of the environment around it burning when it takes off. I opened my eyes And looked down I saw dried up leaves burn to a crisp. I turned to Ivy and Saw her astonished face as her looked at me like I was a forest fire.

"You did it!" she squealed "Now teach that good for nothing 'king' whos boss!" she said with pride. I looked at the wall what was now smaller to me than before and I shot a flame ball at the door insantly burning the wood doors down

Chapter Nine Part Two: The Fight

I walked through the door and the creatures looked at me astounded. In a blink of an eye they scramble away. Too easy. I thought to myself. And I walked cautiously to the grand hall. I changed into a small lizard as I snuck under the door and hid behind a plant. I saw the King of the creatures. Anger overcame me and I leaped out of the bush and changed into my normal self staring straight into the eyes for the king who I caught by surprise. "Where are they!" I shouted with fury at the king. Guards started to come into the room waiting for the order of their king. "Tell Me!" I shouted. I changed into a phoenix to show I mean business. He stood up and looked at me with no fear in his eyes. I growled "where are the dragons." Suddenly I felt a stab of pain and I turned around to see a guard attacking from behind with a sword. I then realized that it was Iron. I jumped away from the guard who had the deadly weapon to me in this form. I quickly changed back to myself and jumped at the king but I got shoved away from him by another guard. I thought of an idea. I lunged towards him again but this time before the guard could attack me I quickly changed to a sparrow and dodged him. I changed into a tiger when in range of the king and sprang at him at full speed prepared to deliver a death blow but the king was quicker than I expected because he dodged it like it was nothing.

Chapter Nine Part Two: The Fight

This time I changed into my normal form but, I felt exhausted I remembered that if I change too much I would get really tired and worn out. I knew if I changed anymore I would pass out. So I stayed in my normal form. I turned invisible and I swiftly attacked the king, slashing him with my claws over and over the guards didn't know what to do and the king was completely confused. I knew I was winning but then I stopped, I looked into the terrified eyes of the king and I knew if I killed him it would be in cold blood so I gave him a warning bite to the shoulder and growled "Leave, Now! And never come back here again.!" I let out a triumphant roar as they fled. I ran to the dungeon where I found all the dragons. I opened all the cell and I watched as all the dragons came pouring out and thanked me. A ripple of pride flowed through me as the queen herself came up to me and said

"Thank you. If it weren't for you my whole tribe would be doomed. But how did you do it?"

I simply said "I guess I just put up a good fight!" she tipped her head in thanks and walked away.

"Ivy has healer powers!" The dragon looked over the her and rasped,

"Well? What is she waiting for? Let her in!" Ivy leaped to her talons and sprinted into the den. I thought for a second about my parents I looked at a dragon family and saw the happiness as the found each other in the crowd. I felt like I was completely alone and I headed towards the exit, thinking I was no longer needed, Ivy found her place it was time for me to find mine. Before I could put one claw out the Exit I heard, "Where are you off to?" It was the queen.

"I uh I didn't think I was needed so I," I looked towards the exit, "I see." The leader paused, "I just came to ask if you would like to hear about this position I am offering" Curiosity took me over and I asked "What is it?"

"A lot of our warriors got injured really bad. Most of them won't be able to protect like they used to. So I thought since you saved us you must be a really good fighter so... Would you like to be our, protector?" A fire glowed inside of me. I look at her and said "Yes"
