Climate	Has seasons just like earth, but laying its been gloomy	Primary Resource/ Technology	Instead of using the typical electricity the using everything power by magic crystals. Everything in there world has magic abilities, from the materials to even the plants and animals.
Size	0.8	Description	This planet's population used to be in the billions before people tried to take if over. Many of those who lived here ended up either dying from these takeover attempts or escaping the planet, leaving their homes behind. The planet used to be filled with nature until the humans came to try and turn this planet into a second earth.
Planetary Wildlife	Lepox (leopard fox) This animal is one of the biggest animals on the planet. Is is a very sneaky, agile creature. It is usually colored to me a light gold with fire orange and purple patterns in its fur. Though you can always hear them, you will rarely see them but if you do they are extremely friendly and helpful almost like a guide.

Chapter : 1

“BANGG!!!!”

The sudden noises wake me up from my sleep in a panic. I can hear everyone in my village screaming, and sounds I couldn't explain then. I quickly jump out of my bed and look out the window to see what is going on on the other side of my bedroom's walls, and all I remember seeing is fire, my friends and family running, explosions, and people I didn't recognize. I stare out the window, frozen with fear, waiting for something that would explain what was happening. Suddenly, I felt my shoulder get grabbed as I was being pulled away. I looked up to see my mother, with fear and pain struck across her face. Before I knew it, we were out of our house running, with my dad closely behind us. My parents and I, and a few other families from the village, ran into the forests surrounding, but soon realized we hadn't quite lost those crazy attackers yet, they weren't planing on letting us go that easily. The next thing I knew was that I had been thrown over the shoulder of my dad while my mom turned back toward the danger. I knew exactly what she was doing. As we got further and further from her, all I could see was the faint light from the spells she was using to fight back, and the fire burned what little was left of our homes, but soon those lights stopped. She was able to hold the danger back just long enough for most of the village's people to escape, except her. This was the last time I ever saw my mother. Though she was no longer with us, the people who survived that day knew her as our hero.

Chapter : 1

This was the first attack; it happened about 7 years ago now, back when I was 10 years old. After all this time, the war between Earth's people and my people continued. The only difference is now I am strong enough to protect myself and everybody else as much as possible. I knew it was my destiny to follow right in my mother's footsteps and help everyone I can, even if it meant putting myself in danger.

Chapter : 2

Last night we were attacked again, but after these 7 years of fighting, we had come up with many ways to defend ourselves, so all that was left for us to do was clean up all the destruction the attackers had caused. Though we won that fight, we knew that was nowhere near what they were capable of doing to our planet, but at this time, all we can do is wait and hope we are prepared. Or is it? An idea pops into my head that I have been pushing down for years.

“Why not actually fight them instead of staying on defence? Take them down, they wouldn’t expect it.” This is exactly what I said to my father. My father is the main leader of our area, the one who has been making all the decisions on how we defend ourselves. But of course, he responds with, “Astrid, you know that is too dangerous, I mean, do you remember what happened to your mother?”

The same answer as always: I know that if we keep responding to every attack like this, and not even putting up a real fight, my planet is going to end before it has the chance to get a real start. I know that even though this isn’t how my dad wants things to be, I have to fight back, and I will, whether he likes it or not.

Chapter : 3

Late tonight, I will make a move and finally fight back to get our planet back for good, but I know I can't do it alone. That's when I realize I know exactly who I need to bring on this mission, I need to find the mythical Lepox.

I sit in my room for hours, waiting until I can be sure that my father is asleep, writing him a note he will see tomorrow morning when he comes to wake me up. What was written on this note was, "When you see this note, I know you will be wondering where I am. I promise I am and will stay safe, but I have finally gone to put an end to this war once and for all. Don't worry, when I am back, our planet will finally be like how it was before. Please don't be upset, I will see you soon. - Astrid."

I set the note on my pillow, grab my bag, and quietly climb out the window. When my feet reach the floor, I look around, remembering how beautiful things used to be at this time of night before this war started, with amazing forests, with plants that glowed and rocks that shone under the moonlight, but now everything slowly lost its glow and sparkle; these humans were killing our world. I finally snap out of my thought and walk forward into the forest.

Chapter : 3

I slowly walk deeper and deeper in until I reach the spot, the spot where I was going to find the Lepox. I sit down in a little clearing and open my bag, and pull out a few little glowing crystals. But not any regular crystals; these were the gems that were strong enough to power multiple villages miles apart. I set these crystals in a circle around where I'm sitting and close my eyes. I can feel the wind around me start to speed up, and even through my closed eyes, I could see the forest around me starting to glow brighter. Then, out of nowhere, I hear branches break less than 5 feet in front of me. My eyes snap open, and there I see a huge Golden, orange, and purple animal, with patterns on its whole body, from its huge fluffy tail to its big, pointed ears.

“A Lepox...” quietly slips out of my mouth. This was the first time I had seen anything like it. It was almost like it could hear my thoughts. It looked at me with a look of understanding. I slowly walk toward it and run my hand through its beautiful fur and carefully hop on its back. That’s when we started heading straight toward the humans' base.

Chapter : 4

With the help of the Lepox, I was able to travel for days straight, only stopping for food breaks, and occasionally for my partner to rest. A trip that would have taken 4 weeks at minimum, only took us 9 days. Now that we have finally arrived, we decided to stay right out of sight of Earth's people to come up with a plan.

“I know with the help of you and all your magic, we can take out at least half of these people on our own by just running in with no plan, but if we go in, we will not be able to pass by just getting rid of half. It has to be all or nothing.” I said to the lepox that was now slowly shaking her head with agreement. “We need to come up with a plan.” Because of the fact that the Earth's people can not breathe our air and do not have the materials to support a lot of people yet, there are only about 5,000- 7,000 people in that base, but they have weapons that we have never seen before that were way beyond the weapons we have had to make, because for years we just used magic instead. But now, just magic wasn't going to be enough.

Chapter : 4

“Cruchhh!” We hear from shortly behind us. The lepox and I sharply turn around and get ready to protect ourselves from whatever could have been apparently following us, but to our surprise, it was not danger at all. It was my best friend, Alison. Before I can even react, she pulls me into a tight hug and faintly whispers, “I finally found you!”

“Yes, you did, but why and how? You shouldn’t be here; it’s dangerous, you could get hurt here, or even die.” I replied

‘The morning when your dad saw your note, we went crazy sending people around in every direction to look for you and bring you home. But I knew exactly how you are, so I knew what you were planning to do, but now you’re going to have my help, and I know EXACTLY what we need to do.’
