Bracelet of Power

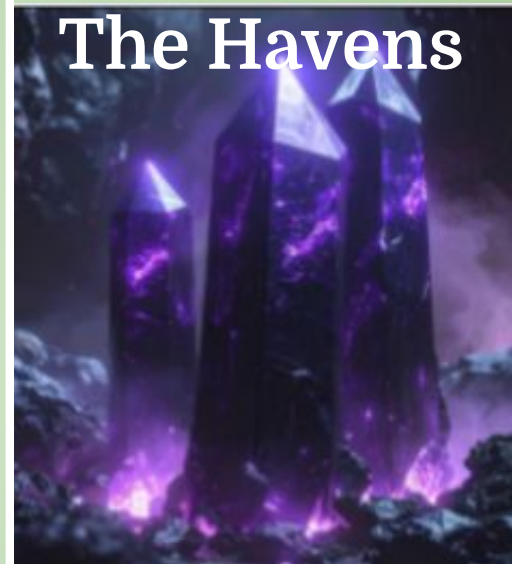

Dragon Land

Diamonds

The Havens

Orbloritte

Origin Story: While I needed to rule the world I had to find something I can use to help me win my battles. While using the orblorite as the base of the bracelet and diamonds for the power in my bracelets having the orblorite from the havens and my diamonds from dragon land and it named the bracelet of power.

Appearance:

It's a thick ish bracelet, with diamonds all over it. And its used to gain powers when needed.

● Super Strength

Super strength is the most common ability, and it's good to use in battles, and if your already super strong it doubles your strength.

◆ Fire Power

It gives me powers to shoot fire out of my hands when needed, and you can burn people to a crisp with it.

★ Every Super Power

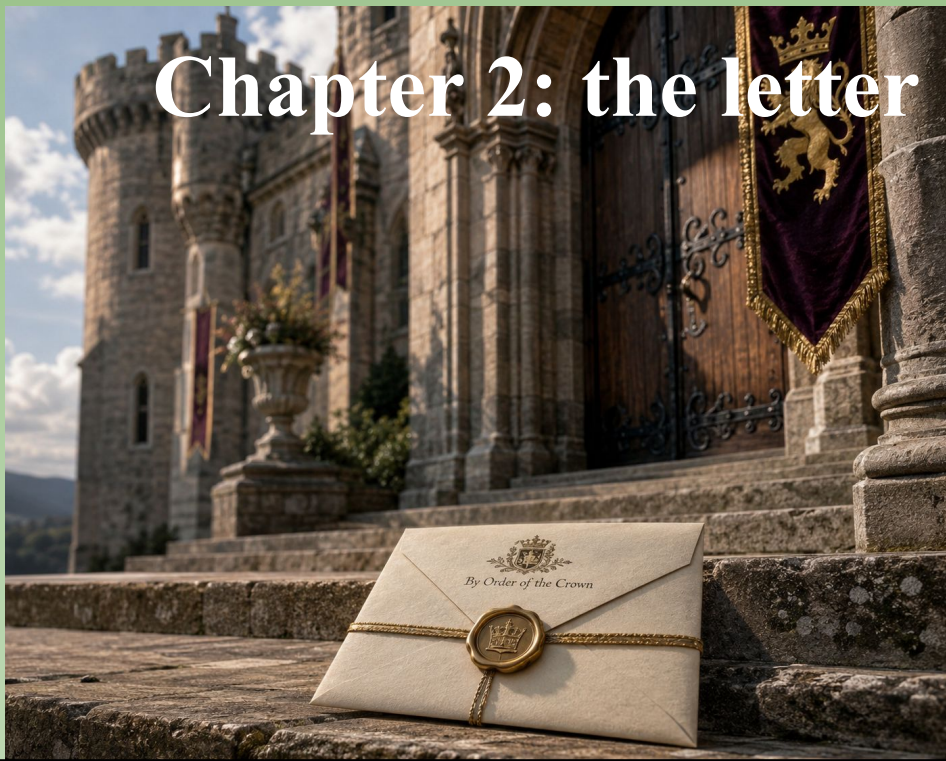

Using the bracelet of powers, a rare ability that you can't get is while you are in a battle you can gain every super power that exists. That way you will be unstoppable.

Chapter 1: the intro

Hello! I'm King Gilbert. I'm seated on my throne, adorned with the red cushions passed down to me from my father, King Gilbert the First. The lines and lines of people that never end. Asking for more and more. How can I help them all? All they want from me is my pink gold, Pink gold that's awaiting them all. My kingdom on Zaris planet holds caves filled and stuffed with pink gold. The dragons that roam around my land collect the gold for my royal family and me. When I'm older, I will not only rule my kingdom, but I will rule the world.

Chapter 2: the letter

I have just received a letter from Dragonland, and they need my dragons to help them fight a war. With this, I can finally show my kingdom that I am brave enough and good enough to rule the world and not just my kingdom on Zaris planet. I have to make an announcement to my kingdom about this, letting my people know I'll be away for a while. In the meantime, before I make my announcement, I must pack my bags and gather Ice, Fire, and Water, my 3 most powerful dragons that are on Dragon Land.

Chapter 3: the departure

I just came back from making my announcement to my kingdom. I am taking my dragons to a camp where they will learn how to win the battle. They will learn everything they need to know to win the battle. While they are at training, I'm going to go down to the caves and get my pink gold. I am only grabbing it so that I can trade along the far journey to Dragon Land. If the Dragons on Dragonland help me rule the world, I will reward them with my pink gold as well. As time has passed, I am now going to pick up Ice, Fire, and Water, my dragons. As I say my final goodbyes to my father and mother, I look at my mother and see tears dripping down her face. I'm now questioning if I should even go on this adventure, as I'm risking my life. I'm risking my life for the whole planet of Dragon Land and My title to rule the world.

Chapter 4: the trust challenge

I finally just arrived after cold nights of traveling. The dragons on the planet did not have any trust in me. They needed to test if I was good enough for them. I worked hard while they tested me. I fought against a big rainbow dragon who guarded the castle, then crossed the bridge of fire with Ice, Fire, and me riding Water.

Then, the final challenge to prove my trust was to work together with my dragon's power, and I put my magic bracelet on to test it out. I realized the only way we are going to win this is if we all work together.

Chapter 5 : the final fight.

The final battle had finally arrived. The enemy Dragon Army surrounded Dragonland, covering the skies with smoke and fire. My heart raced as I climbed onto the fire's back and flew into the battle, with ice and water beside me. The enemy challenged me directly, believing I was too young and weak to defeat him.

During this flight, I remembered everything my father taught me about courage in leadership. Instead of fighting only for riches, I fought to protect my kingdom, my dragons, and the innocent people of Dragonland. With the help of my dragons, I defeated the enemy King in an intense battle high above the mountains. The enemy Army finally surrendered, and peace returned to Dragonland. Everyone cheered as I realized I had become the brave ruler I always wanted to be.

Chapter 6: the realization

After the war ended peace finally returned to Dragonland the dragons thanked me for helping save their Kingdom and for risking my life to protect them I realize that my journey has changed me when I first left zaris planet, i only cared about finding pink gold and becoming the most powerful ruler in the world but after facing danger loss and fear I learned that being a true King means protecting others and leading with courage.

Before returning home, the dragons guided me safely back to the caves on Zaris planet, where the pink gold had always been hidden. this time instead of taking all of it for myself I only gathered enough to help my kingdom when I arrive back home my people celebrated my return my parents were proud of the brave leader I had become, I used the pink gold to improve my kingdom and help my people live better lives with ice, fire and water by my side I ruled zaris planet Wisely and peacefully no longer wanting to rule the world but wanting to protect it instead.
